

Monday Morning Memo

THE BEST WAY TO STAY UP TO DATE
WITH ifmaKC & FACILITY RESOURCES

Good morning ifmaKC!!

THE CHIEFS ARE GOING TO THE SUPER BOWL!! The Kansas City Chiefs have a chance to do something on Super Bowl Sunday that no AFC team in NFL history has ever accomplished: They could beat an NFC team twice in one season.

As crazy as that sounds, no team from the AFC has ever pulled off a two-game sweep against an NFC team in the Super Bowl era. To pull off the sweep, the AFC team would have to win a regular-season game and then also win a rematch in the Super Bowl. The Chiefs are halfway there after beating the Buccaneers 27-24 during the regular season. This year's Super Bowl will mark the fifth time in NFL history that an AFC team has gone for the sweep, and AFC teams have gone 0-4 in the previous four attempts at a sweep.

Overall, there have been a total of 13 Super Bowls that were a rematch of a regular-season game and the team that won the first meeting has gone 6-7 in the Super Bowl. If the Chiefs, who are favored by three points, can pull out the win, they'll be the first AFC team to ever pull off a two-game sweep. (Source: CBS Sports)

ATTENTION! An event you won't want to miss. On Feb. 16th at 11:30 am, our monthly program is Firsthand Update on KCI Airport Project with Deputy Director Justin Meyer. Register here: <https://ifmakc.org/meetinginfo.php?id=156&ts=1611703092>
